Communication Research: Asking Questions, Finding Answers

Ask students to create questions—any questions that will produce the given answers. Write the questions on the board (including any errors in form) and use them as the basis for introducing the principal grammar points in this chapter. If you want to get an idea of your students’ proficiency in the form and meaning of questions, ask them to write and hand in the questions (and the answers, too, to make it easier for you to correct).
