Science communication is the public communication of science-related topics to non-experts. This often involves professional scientists (called "outreach" or "popularization"), but has also evolved into a professional field in its own right. It includes science exhibitions, journalism, policy or media production. Science communication also includes communication between scientists (for instance ...

Biologically, an adult is a human or other organism that has reached sexual maturity. In human context, the term adult additionally has meanings associated with social and legal concepts. In contrast to a "minor", a legal adult is a person who has attained the age of majority and is therefore regarded as independent, self-sufficient, and responsible. The typical age of attaining legal adulthood ...

- Communicating assertively is communicating in a clear manner that expresses your opinions and needs, while respecting the opinions and needs of the other person. Assertive communication is the midway mark between aggressive and passive communication. In my communications seminars I use the metaphor of passive communication being a doormat, and aggressive communication being ...
