MEET: RAVEN. Girls Who Code participant Raven thought helping create an animated tribute to the Pulse shooting was the least she could do. The 15-year-old Alabama girl learned to code at the Orlando Public Library, less than two miles from the Pulse nightclub. Raven's group used the coding skills she learned in the program to create a digital memorial for the victims.

Code refactoring is the process of restructuring existing computer code "changing the factoring" without changing its external behavior. Refactoring is intended to improve nonfunctional attributes of the software. Advantages include improved code readability and reduced complexity; these can improve source-code maintainability and create a more expressive internal architecture or object model ...

The politicization of science is the manipulation of science for political gain. It occurs when government, business, or advocacy groups use legal or economic pressure to influence the findings of scientific research or the way it is disseminated, reported or interpreted. The politicization of science may also negatively affect academic and scientific freedom.
